

10 BEST VALUE RESTAURANTS TO STRETCH YOUR DOLLAR IN NAPA VALLEY

By Dana Rebmann

Napa Valley gained fame for its world-class wine, but more and more wine is having to share the spotlight on dining tables throughout wine country. A fancy meal can cost you a small fortune, but it doesn't have to. Some of Napa Valley's best restaurants don't come with white tablecloths. In fact, some of them don't even technically have tables. Velo Vino's Bruschetteria Food Truck draws a crowd when it's parked alongside the tasting room. At Buster's Southern Barbeque in Calistoga, combination plates come with many types of meat, and require many napkins. Napa Valley's best value restaurants come in a variety of flavors and sizes. Some restaurants produce the makings for a perfect picnic, others include table service, or easy and nearby parking. Whether it's pizza, burgers, or taco time, wine country dishes can be rough on your waistline, but are gentle on your wallet. Grab a menu, the diet can wait.

Gott's Roadside

Gott's Roadside boasts two location in Napa Valley. It has the look and feel of an old-school drive-in, with an updated menu that's loaded with dishes to love. Burgers, French fries, and thick milk shakes are a given, but here you can also order up a bowl of chili, chicken tenders, or go for the Mahi Mahi Tacos. Or maybe give a Niman Ranch Fearless Frank Hot Dog topped with pickled jalapeños a try. Good food comes with a casual vibe here, making it a good stopping point for traveling families. You order at the counter. So it's a good spot to consider if you don't have time for a restaurant with table service.
